Veteran investigative journalist Jim Tucker has uncovered Bilderberg's 2009 agenda, which includes the plan for a global department of health, a global treasury and a shortened depression rather than a longer economic downturn.

Appearing on The Alex Jones Show, Tucker said that former Swedish Prime Minister and regular Bilderberg attendee Carl Bildt, "Made a speech advocating turning the World Health Organization into a world department of health, advocating turning the IMF into a world department of treasury, both of course under the auspices of the United Nations."

Tucker noted that such moves would constitute giant steps toward the world government that Bilderberg has set about to achieve but has been frustrated in finalizing over the past 10 years.

Tucker said that Bilderberg are keen on stressing the problems caused by the economic crisis, as well as the threat of a disease pandemic, as a means of justifying centralization of power.

According to Tucker, Bildt also discussed global warming in the context of a global tax on carbon emissions, which has long been a part of Bilderberg's agenda.

The global tax which will be paid directly to the UN will be introduced gradually, first of all as a barely noticeable tax at the gas pump, before being hiked up once it is in place, said Tucker.

Regarding the crucial Lisbon Treaty, which was struck down after Irish voters said no to its passage last year, Tucker said that Bilderberg were planning to privately send representatives to Ireland to talk to political leaders in an effort to push the treaty through. The EU requires all member states to ratify the treaty before it can be passed and Irish voters will again be asked to vote in a referendum later this year despite having already rejected the treaty last year.

Tucker said that a key component of this year's Bilderberg Group meeting was an effort to get President Obama to, "Slip through ratification of the International Criminal Court treaty," by forwarding it to the Senate to be voted on.

"Their tactics are this," said Tucker, "Obama is to sweet talk the many left-wing Democrats in Congress who really want the International Criminal Court treaty, they're just scared because people were so strongly opposed to surrendering sovereignty that they were afraid to vote for it - political cowards - so Obama's going to sweet talk them and say don't worry, we'll have more liberals in the Senate after the 2010 elections so in January of 2011 when the new Senate is seated you can ratify it late on a Saturday night when it's too late for Sunday morning papers and to re-plan the Sunday talk shows....there will be no political reprisals."

Tucker confirmed the information first released by Daniel Estulin, that Bilderberg were discussing whether to sink the economy quickly or drag on a long agonizing depression. "Treasury Secretary Geithner and Carl Bildt touted a shorter recession not a 10-year recession....partly because a 10 year recession would damage Bilderberg industrialists themselves, as much as they want to have a global department of labor and a global department of treasury, they still like making money and such a long recession would cost them big bucks industrially because nobody is buying their toys....the tilt is towards keeping it short," said Tucker.

Tucker concluded by noting that Bilderberg members seemed grim faced at this year's meeting and that geopolitically, "Things are going bad for them, Americans are responding, Europeans are responding, and their program is being blocked."
